

12 FAH-8 H-430 STATIC AND/OR FIXED RESIDENTIAL GUARDS

(TL:RSP-01; 11-01-2001)

12 FAH-8 H-431 GENERAL

(TL:RSP-01; 11-01-2001)

The requirement for residential guards must be identified in accordance with 12 FAH-6, Security Standards. How static guards are used must be in accordance with the guidance in 12 FAH-7, Local Guard Programs. The following applies to the use of static local guards at residences covered under the RSP:

- (1) Residential guards are generally limited to single-family dwellings at high or critical threat posts except at EMRs;
- (2) For cluster and/or compound housing where access control is required, a static guard(s) may be authorized;
- (3) Security guards will only be considered for apartment buildings when all of the following conditions are met:
 - (a) They are provided at single-family dwellings;
 - (b) There is no CAMS or other satisfactory alarm system;
 - (c) The building's owner does not provide a guard service; and
 - (d) Agreement and/or approval by the apartment owner and other tenants for the use of U.S. Government provided guards have been granted.

12 FAH-8 H-432 RESIDENTIAL SECURITY GUARD PROHIBITIONS

(TL:RSP-01; 11-01-2001)

Residential security guards are prohibited from performing non-security-related tasks. This prohibition should be a part of the general and post orders and be clearly explained to the guards and the residents. Examples of prohibited activities include but are not limited to:

- (1) Assisting the resident with household chores;

(2) Acting as an escort and/or monitor for repairmen, deliverymen, and tradesmen;

(3) Carrying packages from vehicles to the house;

(4) Acting as a baby-sitter;

(5) Gardening;

(6) Car washing; and

(7) Care and/or feeding of pets.
